In this issue...

Just when it seemed we were nearing a kind of resolution to one painful crisis, another has started. While the lifting of Covid-19 restrictions in the UK has been a huge relief for many, the financial cost of the pandemic is now really starting to bite. This is now likely to be exacerbated by the responses to Russia's shocking attack on Ukraine as sanctions bite and inflationary effects on the cost of living rise. Spring is a good time to review and reflect, not least in these circumstances. In this edition of the newsletter we look specifically at the effects of inflation across your financial planning, from ensuring you're making the most of your ISA allocation to thinking ahead with your estate planning. While reform to IHT is now off the table, existing gifting provisions mean you can still mitigate the increasing effect of the tax. If you are among those of us daydreaming about retiring early, recent research has identified 60 as the preferred age. But you'll need sound planning to ensure you cover the potential funding gap before you qualify for your state pension.

The annual ISA allowance – a core component of all long-term investment strategies

Individual Savings Accounts (ISAs) were introduced in the 1999/2000 tax year, initially with an annual investment level of £7,000 and now offer a valuable annual allowance of £20,000 per annum. If you have invested the full allowance each year, and indeed invested in PEPs (the precursor to ISAs), since they were introduced in 1987, you will have invested £351,560. Add in the powerful phenomenon of compound interest and the tax-exempt benefits of ISAs – free from both income tax and capital gains tax – and you have a highly compelling investment vehicle.

We have many clients who have utilised the full allowance and now have ISA portfolios of over £1 million. The ONS now recognises that there are over 2000 ISA millionaires in the UK, and it is satisfying that our firm has several of them.

This tax year ends in just under two weeks and it is therefore possible for a couple to invest £40,000 in that period. If you are sensible and have available cash resources, then you could allocate both years allowances simultaneously. We will allocate the new year's allowance on the 6th April, thereby allowing a couple to invest £80,000 in the next couple of weeks.

It often surprises me that when going through periods of financial market stress, as we are seeing this year with the tragic war unfolding in Ukraine, that investors often pass up on an allowance concerned about the short term market volatility and media noise. Clearly, human nature is to try and avoid inherent short-term risks associated with market turmoil, but my long-term experience suggests that these are the best times to invest.

If you have an ISA portfolio today of £0.5 million invested in a diversified range of equity based funds, it will be worth £1 million in a further 10 years on the assumption of 7% per annum returns. Add in the additional £20,000 annual allowance over the next ten years, and on the same growth assumptions, you get to £1.293 million. These are powerful numbers and can clearly create a significant part of retirement planning or indeed building tax efficient funds to hand on to the next generation. I am very confident that some of our existing ISA millionaire clients will have over £2 million invested in a further decade and £4 million in two, if they continue to allocate the annual allowance.

If short term market volatility is holding you back on allocating this years investment, reflect on the longer term power of compound interest and recognise that once this tax year is over on April 5th, the allowance is gone.

Our website has a Key Guide on making the most of ISA investments. https://www.rosan-ifa.com/guides/ The guide sets out all the rules and options around ISA investing. If you have not used your allowance yet, please consider doing so. You can invest for children and grandchildren too and help them commence one of the most powerful long term investment strategies available.

The only way is up: handling inflation

After years of slumber, the inflation dragon is stirring. Are you prepared to meet the challenge?

In mid-January the Office for National Statistics (ONS) published the final inflation figures for 2021. CPI annual inflation reached 5.4%, its highest in nearly 30 years, and RPI inflation – no longer an official statistic – hit 7.5%. Twelve months earlier the same inflation measures had been just 0.6% and 1.2% respectively.

The sudden return of inflation has surprised many, including the Bank of England. It is now reacting in the way central banks normally do when faced with rising inflation, by raising interest rates. But what should you be doing?

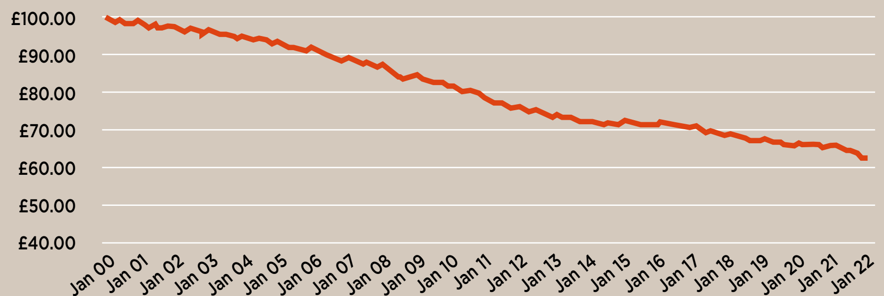
CHECK YOUR PROTECTION

As the graph shows, the mirror image of inflationary price rises is the falling value of money. With inflation at 5.4%, the pound of a year ago is worth less than 95p today. Over time that diminution of value escalates: the £1 of January 2012 was worth 82.3p by January 2022. If you have life cover, critical illness cover or income protection that pays a fixed amount, then its value to your family is similarly being eroded. To maintain their protection, you should consider arranging some top up cover.

REVIEW YOUR RETIREMENT PLANNING

Inflation means that, all other things being equal, you will need a larger pension pot to fund your desired standard of living in retirement. There is only one way to do that: your pension contributions will need to increase. Even if your contributions are directly linked to your earnings, that may not provide a sufficient increase – the latest ONS data show earnings growth lagging behind price inflation.

BUYING POWER OF £100 2000-21



Source: Office for National Statistics

If you are about to draw your retirement benefits, inflation is a major consideration in determining the initial level of income you take. Seek advice on the unavoidable trade-off between your chosen starting level of income and the scope to protect your future income from inflation. The value of a fixed annuity bought twenty years ago will have eroded significantly. While there is now much greater choice in how to draw your retirement income, the basic laws of economics have not changed.

BEWARE HOLDING EXCESS CASH

Inflation is generally bad news for bank deposits. Admittedly the Bank of England is now lifting rates, but there remains a huge gap between deposit and inflation rates. We all need readily accessible funds, but make sure that if you are holding more than you need as a rainy-day reserve, you have a good reason for doing so because it comes at a cost.

REASSESS YOUR INVESTMENT STRATEGY

An investment strategy that has worked well in the era of low inflation and near zero interest rates may not be as appropriate when inflation and interest rates are both rising. An obvious area for review is holdings in fixed interest investments, which suffer when inflation devalues future payments.

ESTATE PLANNING

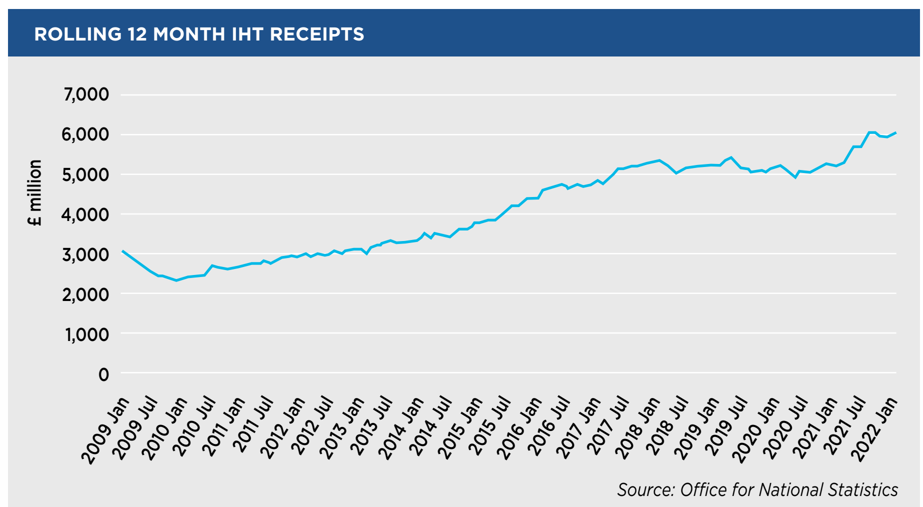
The question marks hanging over inheritance tax (IHT) have disappeared, but as the impact of the tax on individuals and families is growing, there are strategies to mitigate your liability.

When the then Chancellor, Philip Hammond, asked the Office of Tax Simplification (OTS) back in January 2018 to consider how to simplify IHT, two reports followed. The second, issued in July 2019, proposed a range of significant reforms to the tax. Almost immediately after its publication, the subject of IHT simplification disappeared into a Treasury black hole. Budgets passed with no mention of the OTS's efforts, making it difficult to give long-term IHT advice.

Finally, on the last day of November 2021, clarification emerged in a letter from the Treasury to the OTS which stated "...the Government has decided not to proceed with any [IHT] changes at the moment, but will bear your very valuable work in mind if the Government considers reform of IHT in the future".

The long-awaited response has brought certainty about the IHT framework – at least until the next election. However, by the time the Treasury had said "thanks, but no thanks" to the OTS, the current Chancellor had frozen the IHT nil rate bands until at least April 2026. By then the main nil rate band will have been stuck at £325,000 for no less than 17 years.

ROLLING 12 MONTH IHT RECEIPTS



Source: Office for National Statistics

As many people are starting to learn from the freezing of the personal allowance (also to 2026), inflation turns a freeze into a tax increase. The results of the nil rate band freeze are shown in the above graph: between January 2009 and January 2022 IHT receipts rose by 98% while prices increased by 35%.

MITIGATING STRATEGIES

In highlighting several features of the current IHT rules that it felt needed reform, ironically

In 2026 the main nil rate band will have been stuck at £325,000 for 17 years. Inflation has turned this freeze into a tax increase.

the OTS report supplied a list of planning opportunities worth considering. These included:

Normal expenditure gifts If you make gifts that are:

- regular;
- out of your income (including ISA income); and
- do not reduce your standard of living;

then they are exempt from IHT, regardless of their size. In its second report the OTS said it had heard "…from a few respondents that the exemption has on occasion been used to exempt gifts worth more than £1 million for individuals with a very high annual income".

At more modest levels the exemption could mean, for example, that if your regular spending pattern has fallen because of the pandemic, you could use the savings to make gifts free of IHT. Similarly, any investment income usually automatically reinvested is a potential source of normal expenditure gifts.

Outright lifetime gifts Outright gifts suffer no immediate IHT liability and are free of IHT if you survive seven years after making them. If you do not reach the seven-year point, any IHT liability on the gift is reduced by 20% per year from the start of the fourth year, e.g. at five and a half years only 40% of the full IHT is payable on death. The OTS had proposed that the sliding scale of tax should be abolished, commenting that "taper relief is complicated and not well understood".

Pensions While the OTS did not make any specific recommendations on the IHT treatment of pensions, its report did say "…it appears anomalous that some pension policies can be included within an estate for Inheritance Tax purposes while other comparable pension savings are not". The pension flexibility regime introduced in 2015 has increased the value of some pension arrangements in IHT planning.

INVESTMENT

Are you saving in the right ISA?

Despite bumpy stock markets, the returns on stocks and shares ISAs comfortably outperformed those from cash ISAs over the past year.

Data from Moneyfacts show in the 12 months to February 2022, the average stocks and shares ISA grew by 6.92%, compared to just 0.51% from a cash ISA. Interest rates hit a record low in 2020, resulting in meagre returns on these deposit accounts. However, returns on stocks and shares ISAs are volatile, with a drop in returns from 13.55% in 2020/21.

CASH OR STOCKS AND SHARES?

Many people look to open an ISA at the end of the tax year, or start of the new one, using their £20,000 annual allowance. Cash ISAs are a safe option, and ideal for savings that you might need to access at short notice. But with rising inflation, cash held for long periods of time is likely to lose its value in real terms.

While returns on stocks and shares ISAs in recent years have been attractive, these tax-efficient plans are better suited to longer-term savers who can ride out periods of volatility. Historically at least, equity-based investments are most likely to outpace inflation over longer time frames, maintaining the spending power of your savings.

TAX

Counting the cost of the frozen tax landscape

The cost of living squeeze looks likely to be further constricted from April as rising taxes bite. How can you plan for the effect?

The biggest change to come is to National Insurance contributions (NICs). From 6 April these will increase by 1.25 percentage points across the board. For employees, the main rate of NICs will increase from 12% to 13.25%.

The new rate will be applied on earnings between £9,880 and £50,270. Anything over this will be subject to a 3.25% NI charge (up from 2%).

An employee earning £30,000 salary will lose an extra £214 a year; those earning £80,000 a year will pay an extra £839. Self-employed workers pay Class 4 NICs. These have increased by the same margin, to 10.25% and 3.25% for earnings over £50,270. Employers NICs are also increasing.

The government has introduced these higher rates first to boost funding for the NHS and then from 2023 to pay for social care costs, both under extra strain from the pandemic.

DIVIDENDS TAX

A 1.25% increase is also coming to dividend tax rates. Those running their own businesses, who pay themselves via dividends, rather than a salary, will be affected.

From April, those taking dividends from investments will also be hit as dividend income above £2,000 a year will be taxed at 8.75% within the basic rate band, 33.75% in the higher rate band and 39.35% in the additional rate band.

FROZEN TAX THRESHOLDS

Less obvious tax increases are coming in the form of freezes on several tax thresholds, including the personal allowance and the levels at which taxpayers start paying higher and additional rate tax. Over time more people will be dragged into higher tax brackets as earnings rise. Similarly the earnings level at which people start to pay back student loans, or become liable to a tax charge on their Child Benefit, have also been frozen.

OFF-SETTING TAX RISES

You may not be able to avoid the tax rises completely, but there are planning strategies to try. They are likely to be most effective if your current earnings are just below one of the main tax bands.

Employees can opt for salary sacrifice. With your employer's agreement, you effectively cut your salary, with the equivalent amount paid into your pension. This saves NI payments, which aren't due on pension contributions. There is no immediate cash saving, as your take home pay will still be reduced, but you'll be boosting your overall reward package (via pensions) rather than handing more to the taxman.

Care is needed not to breach the annual (£40,000) or lifetime (£1,073,100) allowances on pensions — both of which have also been frozen. Remember some benefits, such as maternity pay or life cover, are linked to salary so these may also be reduced.

It may be possible to bring salary, bonus or dividend payments forward but be careful this doesn't push total earnings for that year into a higher tax bracket, which would outweigh the potential NI savings.

TAX

Tax loophole closing on second homes

If you are a second homeowner with a holiday let, you have a year to ensure you won't be caught by the closure of a tax loophole used by some to avoid council tax bills on their holiday homes.

Currently, those with second homes in England can avoid paying council tax and can access small business rates relief if they state they are planning to use their property as a holiday let.

However, until now homeowners have not had to provide any evidence that this home has in fact been rented out to holidaymakers, allowing some to gain a tax advantage, despite the property being occupied solely or primarily for private use and standing empty for much of the year.

From April 2023 new rules stipulate that holiday rentals must have been let for a minimum of 70 days in the previous year to qualify for the council tax exemption and small business rates. In addition the property must be available to let for 140 days a year.

PROOF OF LETTING

Property owners will have to provide letting receipts and details of where the property is advertised to holidaymakers, e.g. online or via brochures. Those that fail to let out their property for the required period will have to pay council tax the following year.

Business rates are paid to the local authority. Like council tax, the amount paid will depend on the 'rateable value' of the business property. However, as many holiday lets are effectively small-scale businesses, many will qualify for small business rate relief, which will effectively mean no charge at all.

Government figures show that around 65,000 holiday lets in England are liable for business rates, but around 97% have rateable values of up to £12,000. If the rateable value is less than £12,000 then there will be no business rates to pay. These rates are also reduced, on a sliding scale, if the rateable value is between £12,000 and £15,000.

Landlords running commercial holiday let businesses, which encourage tourism and provide jobs and local revenue across the country, will not be penalised.

As we move towards the holiday season, now is a good time to work out a plan to ensure you don't get caught out next year.

Declare your side hustle

Do you have earnings beyond your main job?

Credit: DimaBerlin/Shutterstock.com

MONETISING HOBBIES AND SKILLS

One side effect of the pandemic has been an increase in people creating other sources of income to supplement their earnings.

Often such 'side hustles' are regarded as self-employment and outside the PAYE system that applies to employees' earnings. However, they still generate income on which you may need to pay tax and National Insurance.

EXEMPTIONS

If the extra income is not more than £1,000 gross a tax year, then it may be tax-exempt thanks to the trading allowance. If your additional earnings are more, then you must tell HMRC and pay any tax that is due. You might still be able to benefit from the trading allowance.

Either way, make sure you keep records and do not think you can hide the income from HMRC.

NEWS ROUND UP

Stop Press: War in Ukraine

The impacts of the Russian invasion of Ukraine on 24 February are being felt across Europe and the wider world as share and bond markets have experienced whipsaw moves. The humanitarian disaster will prolong uncertainty, with a particular focus on the inflation-driving markets of energy and commodities. As global sanctions were imposed against Russia, pension funds and other major investment institutions have been faced with difficult ethical and financial decisions. Riding out the storm can be the wisest long-term option, but if you're concerned about your position, please ask for advice.

Base rates rise again

The Bank of England has raised interest rates to 0.5%, the first back-to-back rate rise since 2004. Four members of the Bank's monetary policy committee voted for a larger increase, fuelling speculation that interest rates will rise further this year. These rate rises are likely to push up interest rates on both mortgage products and savings accounts. However, some financial data providers have criticised banks for being slow to pass on this benefit to savers following the December rise.

Probate fees increase

Families face higher probate fees following the death of a loved one from the end of January. Personal representatives or next of kin must now pay a £273 application fee for a grant of probate, which gives them control of the deceased's assets. The cost applies for estates worth more than £5,000. The sum was previously just £215 for families applying for probate, and £155 for those using a qualified solicitor or probate practitioner.

PENSIONS

Who gets to choose when you retire?

The government's recognised retirement age is moving further away from public perceptions of the ideal point to stop work.

Recent research by Aviva revealed that 60 is the most popular target age for early retirement. Coincidentally, that research was published a couple of weeks after the government launched a second review of State Pension Age (SPA). The current SPA for men and women is 66, rising to 67 between 2026 and 2028.

The initial independent SPA review in 2017 proposed an SPA of 68 should be introduced between 2037 and 2039. While the government accepted the recommendation, it decided not to legislate until after the second SPA review, due in 2023.

It is unclear whether the new review will prompt any change:

- Assumptions about life expectancy improvements have been revised considerably since 2017. Broadly speaking, the Office for National Statistics (ONS) has now shortened the 2017 lifespan prediction for a 68-year-old in 2039 by about two and a half years.
- Not raising the retirement age, however, ramps up government expenditure because pensions for the relevant age group will begin a year earlier.

Whatever the final decision, the SPA will remain a minimum of six years beyond that preferred early retirement age of 60. If you don't want to wait for your state pension before retiring, then planning for your early retirement is essential. Aviva's report also discovered:

- Nearly half of early retirees said their finances took a hit as a result.
- Close to a quarter of those who returned to work after retiring early said that financial issues were the reason they did so.

The sooner you begin, the better. The state pension may not be generous, but if you retire early, it represents about £9,600 of annual income that will need funding until your SPA arrives.

The value of your investment and any income from it can go down as well as up and you may not get back the full amount you invested. Past performance is not a reliable indicator of future performance.
